

MONDAY APRIL 9, 1744.

Stockholm, April 3.

Courier who arrived here lately from M. de Rudenschield, his Majesty's Minister at the Court of Berlin, has brought the agreeable News, that the Marriage between his Royal Highness and the Princess Louisa Ulrica, is intirely concluded. His Excellency Count Gyllenbourg, who is at the Head of Affairs here, seems to have, of late, somewhat on the mind of great Importance. He confers frequently with the Royal Highness, is often whole Mornings in private with the Russian Generals, and seems as much taken up with the Russian Affairs, as he was during the last War. He is allowed to have a good Head for Trade, which some attribute to his Stay in England; however, it is certain he is against the modern Project, of increasing and securing Commerce by Prohibitions; and yet these Projects will take place, for Sweden is one of those Kingdoms, where a Minister is often forced to forward Measures that he dislikes in his own Mind.

Turin, March 23. The French and Spanish Squadrons divided. The French are by themselves in Alicante; and, by Advice received directly from Spain, the Spanish Squadron, which has taken Refuge in three several Ports of that Kingdom, is in so ruined and wretched a Condition, that several Ships will never be able to get to Sea again, and none of them for this Campaign.

From the Camp at Cannes in Provence, March 29. We are at last moving forward to go and attack the Camp of Sardinia's Intrenchments at Nice and Montauban. Every Thing is ready for throwing two Bridges over the River Var, which the Army will pass, in order to form a Line of Battle upon the Mountain, at the foot of which the Camp of Sardinia is situated. The King of Sardinia has ordered 1000 Men, which the King of France has ordered to be sent over by Sea to Monaco, to attack the Enemy before the Turbide, but as yet there is no manner of Preparation made for transporting them; besides that, four Spanish Frigates are cruising between Villafranca and Antibes, and yesterday, as we passed along the Coast, they fired several Cannon at us; which has obliged our General to raise four Batteries upon the Redoubts already taken, in order to force them to retire.

Lisbon, April 10. The Intelligence now received from Frontiers differs from the last Advices from thence. It is now said, that, instead of a Camp at Givet, the Garrison there will be augmented to 10,000 Men; and that the new Battalions are ordered to be immediately made use of the Troops. Several Bodies of Troops, which were on their March towards Flanders, have received Orders to halt, under Pretence of the bad Weather; and are distributed into Sedan, Rocrois, Charleval, and Melieres; which are now so full of Regular Troops, that the Militia have been obliged to march out, to take Quarters in the Villages. A large Lighter is now down the Maeze from Charleval to Givet, laden with Wool Sacks; which the French say are to be transported to Valenciennes, to be made use of in a Siege. The 30th of March 23 Waggon were sent from Aachen to Maubeuge, laden with Cannon Shot, from 48 Poundsers.

Amsterdam, April 14. The following is a Translation of a Memorial presented to the States-General this Day, by Robert.

High and Mighty Lords,

When, upon the first Notice of the Hostilities which France was meditating against the King my Master, I was the Honour to demand of your High Mightinesses Part of the Succour due to his Majesty by the Treaty; your High Mightinesses complied with that requisition with so much Cordiality and Readiness, having been pleased to give at the same Time, in your Resolution of the 2d of last Month, Assurances of all the Assistance which the common Interest, and the Obligations of the Treaties might require, and which could be in your Power; that it would be doing your High Mightinesses an Injustice not to depend, in the present Situation of Affairs, upon receiving an Answer equally ready and favourable to the Demand which I have the Honour to make at present.

The King my Master, who, by the open War which France has just declared against him, has a Right to promise himself, from the Equity and Wisdom of your High Mightinesses, the entire Effect of the Engagements which so closely unite the two Nations, and which constitute their common Safety, commands me to require your High Mightinesses to send him, provisionally, the other Part of the Succour stipulated by the Treaty of the Year 1678; consisting of Twenty Men of War, well Mann'd and Provided, to be joined with all Expedition, to the Fleet which his Majesty is assembling in the Channel.

At the same Time that the King expects this new Proof of the good Faith and Friendship of your High Mightinesses, his Majesty commands me to express to you his entire Satisfaction in, and Acknowledgment of that, which he has so lately received, and to assure your High Mightinesses of the exactest Return on his Part, in so critical a Conjunction, where the Hearts and Hands of the two Nations ought to be united as those of one People.

It is, High and Mighty Lords, this real and effective Union, that, next to the Blessing of the Almighty, (which the Justice of his Majesty's Arms gives the greatest Reason to hope for) is the strongest and securest Barrier that we can oppose against every Enemy to the Prosperity, the Liberty, and the Independency of our respective Countries. Done at the Hague this 14th Day of April, 1744.

Sign'd Robt. Trevor.

The Promotion of the Count de Saxe to the Rank of Marshal of France, has been brought about without the Help, and against the Expectations, of his Friends. He had, indeed, a Sort of a Promise, upon his going to Dunkirk, which was look'd on as void, when that Scheme miscarried; and the utmost his Interest could procure, was a separate Command in Germany, by which his Hopes of the Batton were postponed. But his Imperial Majesty (who has now more Credit than ever) insisted on having his old Friend, the Marshal Duke de Belleisle; in which if he prevails (for the Point is not yet decided) M. de Saxe will have the Marshal's Staff, to pacify him for the Loss of that Command, and, perhaps, to qualify him for a better.

At last the Count de Baviere is arrived at Frankfort, where he has been for some Time impatiently expected. It is said, he did not leave Paris, till the Court came absolutely into all that the Emperor desired, and agreed that he should absolutely direct the next Campaign at his own Will and Pleasure. The Difficulties that occurred in doing this, made his Excellency stay so long; and some were of Opinion, that the Court would, at last, have thought of some other Person. But as that Change would have extremely mortified his Imperial Majesty, at a Time when his Influence is the Sweet Anchor of France, it was resolved to content him, and to allow the Count de Baviere to promise him fair, whatever may fall out as to the Performance.

The same Letters from Holland, which brought us these Particulars, inform us likewise, that the Chevalier de Camilly had the Command given him of the Breit Squadron, and Orders to sail immediately to Toulon, where he is to join M. de Cour, and to offer the English Fleet Battle a Second Time, in order to open a free Passage to Italy by Sea. As this was said publicly at Versailles by Cardinal Tenclo, it is suspected, by some deep Politicians, that the Court has already Intelligence of Admiral Matthews's coming back to the Hiers; and that this is invented, to prevent the News from making too great an Impression on the Minds of the People; the Actions of the East-India Company sinking apace, and very little done at above 1750.

The late Count Tarlo, who was killed by Count Casimir de Pogatowski, in a Duel, had some Premonition of his Fate, tho' he would not avoid it; for he not only made his Will, but the Evening before his Death wrote several Letters to Friends, concluding thus; Adieu! I have certain Warning that I am near my End; and that this will be the last Testimony I shall be able to give you of my Affection.

According to the best Accounts that can be had, as to the Strength of the French Army in Flanders, which the King is to command in Person, it will consist of 110 Battalions, and 60 Squadrons. His most Christian Majesty proposes to put himself at the Head of it by the 14th of May, N. S. and has already named four Noblemen for his Aid du Camp; but as to the Dauphin's going thither, it appears a little uncertain.

On Saturday last died at Mr. Richardson's, in Salisbury Court, Fleetstreet, Mrs. MARY CLARKE, a Maiden Lady, bless'd with an ample Fortune, and a Heart and Benevolence answerable to it. The Loss of whom many poor Families will feel, by the Effects ceasing, who knew not the liberal Hand they had so much Reason to bless: For she had too much inward Satisfaction in the Good she did, to wish it to be increased by outward Applause: And for that Reason strictly pursued the Rule of giving her Alms in Secret.

She had for several Years labour'd under great Infirmities of Body, which oblig'd her to reside in or near the Town, for the Convenience of having the best Advice. But till she grew infirm herself, she was eminent (in a Retirement distant from Town) for the Study and Practice of those easy and safe Parts of Physick, which made her a Blessing to all around her: For she delighted in dispensing the best of Medicines to the Poor, who could not have more skilful Help, especially in beginning Illnesses; at the same time relieving, where the Case requir'd it, as much by her Parls as by her Prescriptions. But yet as to the latter, with so much Caution, that she had Many Occasions to take Comfort in her Success, without One to reproach herself for Temerity or Rashness.

'Tis needless to say, that the Death of such a Lady, who was also an excellent Mistress, a steady Friend, and, when tolerably well, a cheerful Companion (always afraid of giving Trouble, never thinking much of any when she could serve a worthy Person) should be regretted by all who knew her.

Last Saturday came on, at the Trinity-House, the Election for Two Elder Brothers of that Corporation, when the Lord Baltimore and Capt. Pelly were chosen; in the Room of Admiral Cavendish, and Capt. Snelgrave, deceased. There were present his Grace the Duke of Richmond, with divers other Persons of Distinction, who were afterwards elegantly entertained at the Three Tuns in Gracechurch-street.

We hear that Mrs. Stacey, of Coleman-street, who was so barbarously used by three Foot-Pads, on his Return from Hackney to London, is thought to be in a fair Way of Recovery.

His Majesty's Ship the Strafford, Capt. Legg, is ordered to be Mann'd at Chatham, with all Expedition; which Ship, we hear, will be one of the Squadron intended for Channel Service.

This Day will be held a Court of Admiralty, for the Trial of the La Francois, the Countess de Mourepas, and the La Felice, taken by the Anglesa, Dreadnought, and Jersey Men of War.

The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Lincoln has nominated Dr. Taylor, of St. John's College in Cambridge, to be Chancellor of the Diocese of Lincoln, in the Room of Mr. Reynolds, deceased.

Last Saturday Morning one of the Dutch Soldiers was conducted thro' the City, under a strong Guard of his own Countrymen, pinnioned, (with a Book in his Hand) in order to suffer Death for Desertion.

Last Friday the Lady Betty Smithson, Wife of Sir Hugh Smithson, Bart. Knight of the Shire for the County of Middlesex, was safely deliver'd of a Daughter at his House in Grosvenor-street.

Last Saturday Charles Leigh, Esq; High Bailiff of Westminster, gave a grand Entertainment to the Right Hon the Lord Percival, and Charles Edwin, Esq; Representatives of the said City, and several other Gentlemen, at Lebeck's Head in the Strand.

On Friday Night a Gardener was attack'd by two Footpads, and us'd in a cruel manner; but some Gentlemen coming up, they were forc'd to make off without their Booty. The poor Man was carry'd to the Hospital at Hyde Park Corner, but 'tis fear'd he can't recover.

From the London Gazette.

Whitehall, April 3. This Day Signior Pietro Andrea Capello, Ambassador from the most Serene Republick of Venice to the King, deliver'd to his Grace the Duke of Newcastle, one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, a Paper, of which the following is a Translation, on Occasion of a Dispute which lately happened at Rome between the Coaches of the Venetian Ambassador there, and of the younger Son of the Pretender.

Copy of the Note which his Excellency Signior Kr. Letze, the Venetian Ambassador at Rome, will have presented to the Cardinal Secretary of State, in Execution of the Resolutions of the most Excellent Senate, of the 14th of March, 1744.

The Ambassador of Venice finding it to be his Duty to execute, with the utmost Expedition, a Commission from the most Excellent Senate, which he received with his Letters of this Day, he thinks it indispensable to communicate to his Eminence, the Secretary of State, what follows; viz.

That his Holiness cannot be ignorant that the most Serene Republick is one of those Powers who have not acknowledged, as King of England, the Person who is called and treated as such at Rome; since the Venetian Ambassadors here have always forbore shewing the least Appearance that might seem contrary to the Intention of the Republick, made known to all Europe, and in no Time altered.

Accordingly, upon the first Advices which the most Excellent Senate had of the Incident of the Coachmen, they having observed, that the Turn which is attempted here to be given to that Affair, tends indirectly to include a Point of so great Importance, as that of introducing the Figure of the Pretender under the Name of King, they determined not to hearken to any Negotiation built upon that Foundation; being resolved, on no Account, to depart from the Maxims above-mentioned; agreeably to which, the strictest Orders had been given to him the Ambassador.

The Ambassador thus executing, with due Obedience, the Orders of the Republick, has the Honour to assure your Eminence of his own unalterable Respect, &c.

The said Ambassador also acquainted his Grace, that the Venetian Ambassadors at Vienna, Paris, and Madrid, had Orders to make the like Declarations at those Courts.

Admiralty Office, April 4. His Majesty's Ship the Solebay, of 20 Guns, commanded by Capt. Bury, being on a Cruise off Cape Spartel, saw a Privateer Schooner on the 23d of February, at Three in the Afternoon, to which he gave Chace, upon which the Privateer made for the Shore; the Solebay followed her as near as possible, and kept firing upon her, till Night coming on she was obliged to leave her, but in so shattered a Condition, that it was believed she sunk under a Watch Tower on Pedro Point, where the several Times attempted to run on shore, but the Surf running very high, drove her off.

On the 25th of February, Capt. Bury gave Chace to another Sail, and came up with her at Nine o'Clock in the Morning. She at first hoisted French Colours, but when within Gun-Shot, she haul'd them down, and hoisted Spanish, and fired a Shot across the Solebay's Fore-top; upon which Capt. Bury haul'd down the Dutch Colours he had then flying, hoisted English, and began to engage; and they continued firing at each other very briskly till about One o'Clock, when the Spanish Ship struck, and Captain Bury carried her into Gibraltar. She proved to be a Register Ship from Vera Cruz, bound to Cadiz, had 16 Carriage Guns, and 140 Men, several of them Passengers: She had seven Men kill'd, and upwards of 20 wounded, several of whom died of their Wounds. Her Cargo consisted of about 190,000 heavy Dollars, 1095 Serons of Cochineal, 556 of Indigo, 424 Hides, with some small Quantities of several other Commodities. The Solebay had only seven Men wounded.
